Description: In Comparative Political Economy case study methods are used for theory building and theory tests (in the sense of plausibility probes). On the one hand, there are single case study methods such as analytic narrative and process tracing. On the other hand, case oriented researchers apply comparative case study methods such as parallel demonstration of theory, the method of contrasting contexts and the methods of agreement and difference. The course introduces into these methods theoretically, methodologically and practically. In addition, we discuss conceptions of causality and strategies of case selection. Students also have the possibility to present their own research designs.

Requirements and evidence of academic achievement: Each student has to prepare the compulsory reading in advance. Furthermore, each student has to write one essay which she/he will present in class and will be assigned to be discussant of one of the essays. The essays have to be handed in latest one week before they are discussed in class. In addition, each student has to write a term paper (Hausarbeit) in which he/she applies a special case study method to address a particular research question or in which she/he gives a critical overview over methodological literature about a special case study method. Students will be graded on the quality of their presentations and essays and the quality of the term paper. The term papers have to be delivered latest on March 13, 2016. The report should not exceed 10.000 words. Own research on literature/data/material is required. All reports are checked for plagiarism. Please read for further information about plagiarism: www.cccp.uni-koeln.de. We use the software "turnitin" to check for plagiarism: <http://www.wiso-it.uni-koeln.de/turnitin.html>. Essays and term papers have to be written in English language.

Reading: All texts are available on the ILIAS-website of the course.
