Description: This course is about the comparative political economy of skill formation systems and welfare regimes. While skill formation systems are important for the provision of training and education, welfare regimes regulate social security. From a cross-national perspective, we review causal explanations of the emergence and contemporary transformation of welfare and skill regimes and analyze their contemporary challenges. The following issues and their links to welfare and skills are discussed: typologies, industrial relations, employers, religion, farmers, asset-theory and co-evolution of skills and welfare, financial markets, housing markets, internationalization, and inequality. The course also demonstrates how quantitative and qualitative methods are used in this research field and students have the opportunity to present their research designs in class.

Requirements and evidence of academic achievement: Each student has to prepare the compulsory reading in advance. Furthermore, each student has to write one essay which she/he will present in class and will be assigned to be discussant of one of the essays. The essays have to be handed in latest one week before they are discussed in class. In addition, each student has to write a term paper (Hausarbeit). Students will be graded on the quality of their presentations and essays and the quality of the term paper. The term papers have to be delivered latest on March 13, 2016. The report should not exceed 10.000 words. Own research on literature/data/material is required. All reports are checked for plagiarism. Please read for further information about plagiarism: www.cccp.uni-koeln.de. We use the software "turnitin" to check for plagiarism: http://www.wiso-it.uni-koeln.de/turnitin.html. Essays and term papers have to be written in English language.

Reading: All texts are made available on the ILIAS-website of the course.
