Course description

This is an introductory course for the field of parties and party systems at the MA level. The course will cover fundamental analytical questions: How did political parties emerge? Why do they matter? How do they work? Are they still relevant? After introducing the concept of political party and highlighting its roots, a detailed analytical framework will be provided on party models, party finance, intra-party democracy, party change, party families, parties and social cleavages, party ideologies, anti-establishment parties, party-states vs. partyless states, party systems, and the prospect of party politics.

Prerequisites

A good knowledge of general political science concepts and theories and basic knowledge of quantitative and qualitative methods is desired. Students should be able to understand and articulate themselves in English as the medium of instruction will be English.

Relevance for study programs

The course is open to master students of the WISO faculty with an interest in political science. It will be offered in the “SpM Applied Theories and Methods Political Science I (1335MSTMP1)” (for further information, please confer the Modulhandbuch).

Registration

The course will be taught on a weekly basis (first session, 5 April). Registration takes place via KLIPS. I strongly recommend registration as this ensures that you may get information about ad hoc changes in the schedule.

Exam

Participants are expected to:

- make a presentation on one of the required readings (max. 15 minutes + 15 minutes discussion)
- submit a term paper (around 3500 words)

Grading

Presentation	30%
Paper	70%

Reading assignments

The required reading is indicated as such, but you will also find recommended readings that are not required for class. The recommended readings list only serves as orientation in case you intend to delve deeper into the particular research topic. All required texts for the seminar sessions can be found on ILIAS.

Most texts can only be accessed from within the UKLAN network of the University of Cologne. If you do not know how to obtain access to UKLAN, please consult the RRZK's websites: <http://rrzk.uni-koeln.de/netzzugang.html?&l=1>
